

HISTORY

MERSEYSIDE LABOUR MARKET

Whilst studying history can open up careers directly related to your subject matter, consider how you will develop your critical thinking and analytical skills, your ability to communicate findings and think objectively. Considering careers in journalism, law, PR and marketing can provide great opportunities nationwide. The skills you gain through studying history are transferable to most careers and jobs. Occupational sectors include, business, professional services, science and research, education and many more. There are 39 museums and galleries in Merseyside.

LABOUR MARKET

4,256

People approx. are employed in careers that make use of History across Merseyside

748

Research and development managers

178

Archivists and curators

2,481

Legal associates and professionals

849

Librarians, library clerks and assistants

OTHER SECTORS

Creative and digital industries
Education and training
Advanced manufacturing and engineering
Legal and professional services